COMAL & MEZCAL

NUESTRA COCINA

From a very young age from the aromas of my grandmother's pots and stoves, I found my true passion, cooking. Every afternoon after school, my grandmother took care of me and would integrate herself fully in the kitchen. Between jokes, laughter and her exquisite flavors, it encouraged me to dedicate myself fully to gastronomy. I wish to transport you to this space, to a corner of beautiful Oaxaca, through the aromas and flavors of our cuisine that we prepare with our heart.

SIN MAÍZ, NO HAY PAÍS

Corn is the most representative food item of our culture and gastronomy, where countless stews and drinks are based on this blessed grain, present since ancient times in our diet. Corn belongs to the Poaceae or Grass family and is one of the oldest known food grains. It is considered that corn was cultivated approximately 10 thousand years ago BC. The oldest evidence we have is from 6,250 years ago, evidence found in the Guilá Naquitz cave, in Oaxaca, a few kilometers from Mitla. Santo Gusano Comal and Mezcal offers its guests exquisite Oaxacan-inspired cuisine, where a large selection of dishes seeks in some way to pay tribute to corn and preserve, through its unmatched seasoning, the best of Oaxacan cuisine.

MOLE

Un platillo para celebrar

Mole is an emblematic dish of the state of Oaxaca; Its preparation includes endemic ingredients such as chilhuacle, pasilla and ancho chiles, as well as various seeds, spices and herbs. The diversity of ingredients that characterize the entity means that each region has its own essence, forming part of the maximum expression of Oaxacan culture. The word mole has its origin in "Mulli", a word that means stew or mixture, referring to a sauce, and dates back to pre-Hispanic times, when it was a delicacy of the gods. This recipe has transformed over time and became an icon of Mexican cuisine. It is the traditional dish that is served in various festivities. Today, there are more than forty types of mole throughout our country, with Oaxaca being one of the main states for having a great variety of this food in its vast gastronomy; That is why Oaxaca is known as "the land of seven moles." At Santo Gusano Comal and Mezcal, we pay tribute to 2 of the most traditional moles of Oaxaca; the black mole and the traditional, manchamanteles, a sweet-tasting mole, made with pork prepared with ancho chili, cloves, pepper, cinnamon, onion, thyme, oregano and ground garlic; in addition to pieces of tropical fruits such as pineapple, pear, apple and plantain, which give it a peculiar flavor. Enjoy your experience and be sure to try our delicacies accompanied by this delicacy of the gods.

TORTILLAS CEREMONIALES

We rescued the tradition of ceremonial tortillas; a practice of Otomi culture and a ritual for harvesting. Painting the tortillas is one of the first parts of the harvest rituals, in which the food received from Mother Earth is appreciated. The tortillas are painted with a mesquite wood stamp and ink made from muicle, a colorful plant to which cochineal and other natural dyes are added. These tortillas made by the indigenous communities of the region are consumed as part of a ritual to commemorate special dates, the patron saint of the place or to manifest happy events for families to have. At Mezcalería Santo Gusano we want to revive this tradition and enjoy our specialties accompanied by ceremonial tortillas that represent our respect and gratitude for the gastronomy of our beautiful country.
